

environmental policy

 has been engaged in the supply of new and used office furniture for 25 years. Over the last 11 years the issue of the environment and recycling has become an important consideration in the way we carry out our business. We have formed supply lines with manufacturers that have a range of products who are leaders in their field. Most importantly that their products originate from renewable sources and are able to be broken down and recycled at the end of their life. The production process is also taken into account and must meet with the guidelines laid down by the local authority. Our main processes include upholstery, woodcutting, assembly and finishing. The Company was established in 1996 and has been trading on this site since 1980.

Systems have been established to identify all relevant environmental legislation so as to ensure that we meet all resulting requirements. The Company seeks to prevent pollution through a continual process designed to identify, evaluate and where ever possible, reduce the environmental impact of our operations on the environment.

Communication on environmental matters will be encouraged through the provision of training. Suggestions for improved environmental performance will be encouraged. We have identified both short and long term objectives for each of the Company's environmental issues, through which we aim to achieve continual environmental improvement.

BC Interiors will consider the 'embodied' energy of what it specifies in its purchases and use the repair and maintenance of its existing building stock as another route to reducing energy use. It will also promote the benefits of renewable energy sources, whenever possible, and continue to source renewable power when this option is appropriate.
